SIMON COMMISSION REPORT.

ILLUMINATING SURVEY OF INDIA.

NO RECOMMENDATIONS IN THE FIRST VOLUME.

UNANIMOUS OPINIONS.

The first of the two volumes has been issued of the eagerly awaited report of the Indian Statutory Commission, which was presided over by Sir John Simon, appointed two and a half years ago to investigate the matters concerning the extension of self-government in India. The document comprehensively surveys Indian conditions.

Although the present volume is of the greatest interest, higher importance attaches to the second volume which will be issued on June 24. This will contain the Commission's recommendations. The fact that the seven Commissioners represent all political parties and that the whole report is, in their words, "unanimous in all fundamental matters and without a dissenting minute," makes it an historic paper of the weightiest order. The Commissioners paid two visits to India where they travelled 21,000 miles.

The future of the British Army is stated to be a most difficult one, while stress is laid on the stumbling block caused by Hindu-Muslim rivalry and the question of communal representation.

THE NATIONALIST MOVEMENT.

London, June 9.
After an inquiry lasting two and a half years, the Indian Statutory Commission, on which all three political parties are represented and over which Sir John Simon presided, has submitted a unanimous report.

It was appointed to inquire into and report upon the working of the system of Government, growth of education, and the development of representative institutions in British India.

Two visits were paid to India. The Commissioners travelled about 7,000 miles on a preliminary visit and about 14,000 miles on the second visit. They received numerous deputations and collected from the Provincial Governments and other sources a vast amount of memoranda and material which are being published in supplementary volumes.

Four Hundred Pages.
Eight out of the nine Provincial Legislatures appointed committees to collaborate with the Commission and the Viceroy appointed an Indian Central Committee, composed of members of the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly, for the same purpose.

In the Governor's provinces all the evidence was taken by a joint conference of the Statutory Commission, Indian Central Committee and Provincial Committee sitting together.

The report is in two volumes. Volume I now issued occupies over 400 pages and discusses the conditions of the problem existing in constitutional structure, working of the reformed constitution administrative and judicial system, the system of public finance, growth of education in British India and public opinion in India.

The Second Volume.
The second volume, dealing with future developments and giving the present Commission's conclusions and recommendations, will be published on June 24.

This method of issuing the report was chosen by the Commissioners to permit a survey of problems to be digested before their recommendations were judged. A conference of the representatives of British India and Indian states, called on Sir John Simon's suggestion after the publication of the report, will take place in London on October 20.

Formidable Obstacles.

Discussing the prescribed goal of British Indian policy the Commissioners state, "On the one hand progressive realisation of responsible government in British India

as an integral part of the British Empire is a fixed object, to the attainment of which, in co-operation with the Indian peoples themselves, British policy stands pledged, and obstacles in the way cannot be treated as defeating that object or as affording discharge from its pursuit.

They are of so formidable a character that no opinion as to what should now be done is worth anything at all until they are duly appreciated. But whatever the obstacles, the object stands as the declared goal of British Indian policy.

On the other hand it is equally part and parcel of the pronouncements of 1917 and 1919 that progress in the attainment of this avowed object can only be achieved by successive stages, that the time and manner of each advance can be determined only by Parliament upon whom the responsibility lies for the welfare and advancement of the Indian peoples. A decision as to the immediate future must largely depend upon a just estimate of the results and consequences of the steps already taken.

India Surveyed.

Our own task is not to decide, but to report to the King Emperor and to Parliament. In the steps that will follow before a decision is reached there will be a full opportunity for a contribution of views of every section of responsible and representative opinion in India.

Dealing with the conditions of the problem, the Commissioners survey India's vast size and varied population, its conglomeration of races and religions, its social divisions, its economic circumstances, its growing political consciousness and the position of the army in India.

"In spite of the eagerness with which political India is embracing the modern ideas of Government, the ancient social system of Hinduism, which has evolved a rigid complication of innumerable castes from the Brahmin at the top to the Pariah at the bottom, continues to control the lives and thoughts of more than two hundred out of three hundred and twenty millions of the population with a persistence and authority undreamed of in the Western world."

A Single Entity.

A sense of unity is growing, but it is largely the outcome of the most recent stage of India's history, during which the influence and authority of British rule over the whole area have made it possible to speak of India as a single entity.

TSINANFU BEING GIVEN UP.

NATIONALIST TROOPS ON RETREAT.

SEQUEL TO BOMBARDMENT OF THE CITY.

MOVING TO TAIAN.

Shanghai, June 9.
The withdrawal of the Nationalist troops under General Han Fu-chu, the officer in command at Tsinanfu, from the latter city towards Taian and Chowchuen, seems to indicate that an agreement has been reached between General Han Fu-chu and Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, the C-in-C. of the Kuomintang-Shansi allies now assailing the Nationalist Army in Shantung.

The latest reports from Tsinanfu state that the Nationalist troops suffered heavy casualties in the battle of Ting-cheng near Tsinanfu during the week-end.

Retreat Explained.

Perturbation was felt among the Nationalist Commanders when they heard of the annihilation of some of the picked troops under General Han Fu-chu with the result that the latter Commander sent a delegation to Pingyuan to interview Marshal Yen Hsi-shan offering Tsinanfu to the allies on the condition that the Shansi troops would cease their bombardments of Tsinanfu so as to permit the Nationalist Commanders to organise a retreat of all the Nationalist troops and Garrison forces from the city.

General Han suggested that his army would fall back to Chowchuen, while the thousands of Tsinanfu Garrison troops would retreat to Taian.

Garrisons Leave.

Marshal Yen Hsi-shan has complied with all the demands of the Nationalist Commander at Tsinanfu, signifying his intention to ensure the safety of foreign life and property in Shantung.

Yesterday saw the departure from Tsinanfu of all the Garrison forces, who fell back to Taian. It is expected that the troops under General Shih Yu-shan, of the Kuomintang Army, will soon enter Tsinanfu.

The Nationalist H. Q. at Tsinanfu has been removed to Hsuehchowfu and the Command was closed yesterday.

Lull Prevailing.

While the Nationalist and Shansi leaders are negotiating for the surrender of Tsinanfu a lull is prevailing along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and no serious fighting has occurred at Tsinanfu or its vicinity to-day.

In Northern Anhui, all the Nationalist forces have withdrawn for the Tientsin-Pukow Railway or the Hupeh-Hunan frontiers and in consequence no fighting has occurred in Northern Anhui for the last ten days or so.

The Kuomintang Army under General Sun Tien-ying is still able to hold Pochow, the centre of military activity in Anhui Province.

Changsha presents the appearance of a military camp and according to latest messages, General Li Chung-ying has been unanimously appointed by the leaders of the "Ironside" and Kwangsi troops as Commander-in-Chief of the allies.

Other Appointments.

The appointment of General Pei Chung-hsi as Commander of the vanguard to attack Yochow, General Chang Fat-kwai as Commander of the left flank and General Yang Tang-hui as the Commander of the right flank have also been simultaneously announced.

After marching from Nanning, the Kwangsi forces under General Wang Shao-hung have arrived at Hengchowfu. It is the intention of the Kwangsi army not to proceed any further making a stand at Hengchowfu to prevent the progress of the Cantonese Army organised at Canton from reaching Changsha.

AUSTRALIAN'S BIG TOTAL.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED FOR EIGHT WICKETS.

CAMBRIDGE SUBDUED.

London, June 9.
When the match between the Australians and Cambridge was resumed to-day, Woodfull and McCabe, who had made a big stand on Saturday, continued to score rapidly from the bowling.

Cambridge had batted on Saturday and made 145, and when play was resumed this morning the Australians had 179 on the board for the loss of only one wicket, Woodfull being 61 and McCabe 62 not out.

The Australians went on to pile up a huge total when they knocked up 504 for the loss of eight wickets. At this figure they declared the innings closed. Woodfull gave a masterly display of batting and scored 216 before he was defeated.

McCabe also showed his batting prowess and knocked up 96 before he was dismissed.

With a huge task in front of them to avoid an innings defeat at least, Cambridge went to the wicket again, but their early batsmen failed to stay long before the Australian bowling.

When stumps were drawn for the day Cambridge had scored only 42 runs for the loss of three wickets.—Reuter.

MACAO-SHEKKI DEADLOCK.

SUSPENSION OF BUS SERVICES.

PROTEST AGAINST NEW FORMS OF TAXATION.

ENTERPRISE KILLED.

Chung Shan, June 8.

Considerable surprise was expressed when it became known in Shekki city two days ago that the buses of the Macao-Shekki Highway had stopped running, in protest against new forms of taxation imposed by the district authorities.

Some weeks ago it was announced that the Governor of the district, Mr. Wong Kiu-so, had given instructions to enforce the system of licences on motor cars, proposed by his predecessor, and much criticism was raised in business circles, for the feeling was gaining ground that after other impositions recently enforced, other charges would follow. These misgivings seem to have been justified, as the new charges on the highway companies take the form of a mileage tax, in addition to the exorbitant licence fees for cars, buses, and drivers.

Not Justified.

Merchants declare that ordinarily in other countries motor taxation would be justified where the roads are built by the authorities and where the cost of maintenance, policing and lighting are a Government obligation.

In Chung Shan, however, not one mile of road has been built by the authorities, excepting one short piece inside Shekki city. Traders feel, therefore, that as the Government can offer no roads for public use, any taxation is unjustified and is an extortion for which the Government offers nothing in return, not even protection against robbers.

The builders of the highways have already spent a few hundred thousand dollars on the enterprise of road-making, and charge a toll on all motor and other vehicles making use of their roads. Just at a time when merchants have been seriously considering the need for buying motor trucks and cars, these discouraging impositions have frightened all prospective buyers.

Seizure Fears.

It is even predicted by those pessimistically inclined that it might be possible that the authorities will eventually take forcible possession of all the roads now built by private concerns, and merchants view the attitude of the district authorities with grave concern.

Motor traffic on the Macao-Shekki Highway is now restricted almost entirely to the Company's buses, and the tolls which the Company used to collect, which are believed to have amounted to several hundreds of dollars per month, would seem to have lost, as few cars, if any, are making use of the highway, because of the taxes now imposed by the district authorities.

Fear of Reprisals.

A meeting of the principal shareholders of the Company is reported to have taken place, and the resolutions passed by the meeting are said to amount to a surrender to the charges made by the authorities. The feeling prevails among business men that the Macao-Shekki Highway Company, in agreeing to meet the demands of the authorities, is moved by a fear that reprisals will be taken if the demands of the authorities are not met and if business is suspended by the Company.

To say that the majority of the merchants in Chung Shan are thoroughly disgusted with the policy of the government of the "model" district is but to put it mildly.

The authorities know that they will find much local support for any enterprises that they wish to encourage, and are said to be seeking to establish a Publicity

HOME MOTORING TRAGEDY.

FORMER HONGKONG RESIDENT CHARGED.

CASE DISMISSED.

Home papers to hand contain an account of Police Court proceedings at Camborne, Cornwall, in which Mr. L. E. Hopkins, formerly Manager of the P. and O. Banking Corporation in Hongkong, was charged with manslaughter, this being the sequel to a motoring accident in which Mr. Harry Pascoe, assistant master at the Truro Technical School, was knocked down and killed by a car driven by Mr. Hopkins.

The accident occurred on the main road between Redruth and Truro on a rainy night. Mr. Hopkins' car running into Mr. Pascoe and his son as it overtook them when they were walking on the left-hand side of the road. Mr. Pascoe was so severely injured that he died almost immediately, whilst his son was also badly hurt and taken to hospital, where, during delirium, in the temporary absence of an attendant, he jumped from a window and was killed.

Giving evidence at the trial, Mr. Hopkins, who is now licensee of the King's Head Hotel, Chacewater, stated that with three other men he had driven a Singer car to Carbis Bay to play a game of rings at the Cornish Arms Hotel there and on the return journey he was dazzled by the lights of an oncoming car. He applied his brakes and pulled into the near side of the road, when he felt an impact as if his car had hit something. He had not seen anyone on the road and it did not occur to him that he had struck anybody. Before he could pull up his car, it had skidded out to the centre of the road. Later he discovered that he had knocked down Mr. Pascoe and his son. At the time, he was travelling at about 25 miles an hour. He explained that he did not see Mr. Pascoe or his son because they were walking in a dark hollow and because he was dazzled by the oncoming car.

Accused's solicitor contended that as there was no evidence of insanity or excessive speed, Mr. Hopkins was not guilty of culpable negligence.

The Bench held that no prima facie case had been made out, and the case was therefore dismissed. It was intimated, however, that Mr. Hopkins would have to appear at the Assizes on the manslaughter verdict returned at the Coroner's inquiry.

Mr. Hopkins, who was made a Justice of the Peace in Hongkong in 1925, was for some time prior to last year Manager of the P. and O. Bank in Hongkong and was also on the Committee of the Hongkong A.D.C. He was well-known locally as a talented vocalist.

THE HARBOUR PIPE LINE.

TESTS BEING MADE FOR LEAKAGE.

In view of reports that a leakage has developed in the harbour pipeline, a Telegraph representative this morning made enquiries at the Waterworks Department, and was informed that a leak had been detected.

Our representative was further told that tests were at present being made to ascertain the extent of the leakage, and this work might take a week or more.

When asked if the leakage may have been caused by a ship's anchor, the official interviewed said this was quite possible, but so far the cause had not been definitely ascertained.

No serious interference with the water supply is anticipated as a consequence of the leakage.

EVIDENCE IN THE HOTEL CASE.

MR. HACKER CROSS- EXAMINED.

QUESTIONS ON CAPACITY OF A WELL.

EARLIER SCHEMES.

When the hotel case was continued in the Supreme Court this morning before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp), Mr. Hacker, the expert witness for the plaintiffs, Messrs. Anderson, Meyer and Company, was further cross-examined by Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., leading counsel for the defendants, the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels Limited. Mr. Hacker was questioned at length on his evidence of the guarantee of an adequate volume of water at a maximum temperature of 70 degrees given by Mr. A. Brearley.

Plaintiffs, who are represented by Mr. H. G. Sheldon, are claiming $25,385.30 as the balance due for the installation of a refrigerating and ice plant at the Peninsula Hotel, but defendants are counter-claiming for $140,000.

Mr. Potter reverted to early March, 1928, when Mr. Hacker had said Mr. Brearley made statements to him with regard to the water.

Mr. Potter:—You realise what an important statement you suggest that Mr. Brearley made to you?—I do.

Because the whole success or otherwise of this plant would depend upon the correctness of that statement?—Not the whole, but it was a very important point. If he goes wrong on his volume and temperature of water, the plant is bound to be a failure?—Yes.

Daring Statement.

It was rather a daring statement for a person to make who had only just arrived in the Colony and had not even seen the well?—I don't consider that to be a fact.

Why?—Because they had gone into this matter with Mr. Brearley's predecessor and he had data of his predecessor for his use.

Continuing, Mr. Hacker said he meant that Mr. Brearley had obtained information from Mr. Mackenzie.

Mr. Potter:—If I prove beyond all doubt that Mr. Brearley had no such information, then Mr. Brearley's conduct is inexplicable?—Yes.

Mr. Hacker, answering other questions, said he knew that the water was to be supplied from a surface well to which a pump was connected and Mr. Brearley might have obtained his information from that as he could have obtained the temperature. He did not know whether the temperature of such wells would vary with the weather or not. It would depend on the depth of the well whether the temperature of the water would approximate to the temperature at the surface, but he was not an expert on wells.

Not Expert on Wells.

Although agreeing with the importance of the water supply, Mr. Hacker said that during his 20 years' experience he had not acquired much information about water as it was not part of a refrigerating engineer's work to go out and dig wells. He did not know that the well was on reclaimed land and he left the matter of water entirely to Mr. Brearley by agreement between them. "The one thing I was clear of from what Mr. Brearley told me was that he guaranteed me a full supply of water at 70 deg. maximum temperature."

Mr. Potter then referred Mr. Hacker to a section of the contract dealing with the condensing water part of the plant, which provided for the water in the condensers being returned to the well. Witness said he did not consider that extraordinary and it was Mr. Brearley's suggestion.

Mr. Potter commented that Mr. Brearley would say something entirely different.

Mr. Hacker continued that the reason for that provision was because Mr. Brearley was not sure of the well's capacity.

Mr. Potter:—And he told you that?—Yes.

TYPHOON SIGNALS HOISTED.

APPREHENSION CREATED IN HONGKONG.

The hoisting, for the first time this year, of the local No. 1 typhoon signal, followed later by the No. 4 signal, caused some apprehension in Hongkong yesterday, and this was not allayed until after 5 p.m.
when the signals were lowered, denoting that the danger of the typhoon breaking over the Colony had passed.

According to an official statement
at the Royal Observatory last night, there is small likelihood that the weather will become any worse now, as the typhoon is stated to be filling up.

The No. 1 signal was first raised at 4.25 a.m. yesterday, and subsequently the Observatory reported a typhoon of unknown intensity within 60 miles of Lat. 19 N. and Long. 113 E., direction unknown.
This denoted its position as east of Hainan.

At 11.27 a.m. the No. 4 signal was displayed, indicating that a gale was to be expected from the East, and in a report issued at noon, the Royal Observatory stated that the depression was about 100 miles S.S.W. of Hongkong and appeared to be travelling northward, and might develop into a typhoon
later.

Shortly after 5 p.m. the signals were lowered, and after giving this reassuring sign, the Observatory reported that the typhoon was filling up between 50 and 100 miles west of Macao, travelling northward. It was a typhoon of small diameter, but no record could be made of its depth inside, as there was no observation of the centre.
It was one of those small typhoons which might be very violent inside, but the Observatory had no information on the point.

Danger of the typhoon working its way towards Hongkong had, however, passed, and it was unlikely that the weather would get worse.

Rain fell heavily all day, with a fairly strong north-easterly wind, and the official recording of the rainfall between 10 a.m. on Sunday and 8.30 p.m. last evening, was 2.63 inches.

Sampan, "walla-wallas" and launches, observing the signals, forsook the water front and made their way to the typhoon shelter yesterday and apart from the river boats and a few commercial launches, the whole water front was deserted throughout the day.

Rocheville, centre, who flew Commander Donald McMillan in the Arctic in 1925, will be the pilot and will be accompanied by a navigator. This odd-looking ship is 60 feet wide and 35 feet long, has a speed of 145 miles an hour, carries 875 gallons of gas and can remain in the air 70 hours without refueling, its designers claim.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffatt, right, first United States naval delegate to return from London, is pictured above in Washington as he reported on the five-power conference to the Acting Secretary of the Navy.

These services at the tomb of Read, Admiral Robert B. Peary commemorated the 25th anniversary of his discovery of the North Pole.

The world's biggest plane—Germany's Dornier DOX air boat pictured at top—is being groomed for a one-stop trans-Atlantic flight to America early in the summer. Claude Dornier, shown at left, designer and builder of the huge craft which can carry 175 passengers, may command the ship on its projected sea hop.

Reports of grave social conditions resulting from unemployment were heard by the Senate Committee of Commerce, pictured above as it opened hearings in Washington. Three bills for relief of unemployment have been introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, shown standing, at left.

Largest land plane in the world is this sky giant designed and built by Gianni Caproni, Italian inventor. The craft soared to new records—a height of 1745 feet with a cargo of 22,000 pounds.

JAPANESE NAVAL CHANGES.

IMPORTANT SHUFFLE OF HIGH PERSONNEL.

Tokyo, June 9.
It is learned that important changes in the higher personnel of the Navy, including the Vice-Minister of the Navy and the Vice-Chief of General Staff, will be gazetted to-morrow.

It is officially asserted that this is merely the usual annual shuffling of the personnel, but public interest is aroused because several of those involved figured prominently in the London Treaty controversy, especially Vice-Admiral N. Sugetugu, Vice Chief of General Staff, who is to be replaced by Vice Admiral S. Nagano, formerly President of the Naval Academy.

The new Vice-Minister of the Navy, Vice-Admiral S. Kobayashi, formerly Chief of Materiel, is succeeding Vice-Admiral K. Yamana-shi.

Vice-Admirals Sugetugu and Yamana-shi are attached to the General Staff without specific assignment.

It is authoritatively stated that the changes are the result of an agreement between Admirals Takarabe and Kato with Admiral Okada mediating. It is believed that it will lessen the bitterness growing out of the London Pact.

JAY WALKING FINE THREAT.

MOTORISTS APPLAUD MR. MORRISON'S HINT.

The threat of Mr. Herbert Morrison, the Minister of Transport, to consider legislation imposing penalties on pedestrians who walk to the public danger, has met with the approval of motorists and the apprehension of "Jay-walkers."

In America it is not only considered "bad form to play the fool under modern traffic conditions" as Mr. Morrison put it. Under municipal ordinances in many cities the haphazard pedestrian can be summarily arrested and fined £10.

Statistics issued last year show that in England pedestrians were responsible for more than 37 per cent. of the accidents and motor vehicles for just over 40 per cent.

An official of the Royal Automobile Club told a representative of the Daily Chronicle that the Club had advocated a measure of this kind for some time.

"There is certainly need for legislation to limit the roaming powers of the pedestrians," said the official. "The solution to the problem of reducing street accidents will not be found by attacking any one section."

The view of the Pedestrians Association was that the degree of reck

It's Smart to choose long wearing hosiery

THE most fashionable women think of wear as well as fashion when they select hosiery. That's why so many of them choose Hosiery.

They know without realizing why that Hosiery lasts and lasts. The secret "Ex" reinforcement at the toe...practically invisible yet so strong...adds long months of wear.

And fashionable women know at a glance that Hosiery rich natural silk hosiery is smart. Correct colours... smart heels...newest in clocks...all are here because Lucile, well known Parisian fashion expert, creates them for Hosiery.

WOMAN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

Left to right: A white crepe de chine frock, over a matching slip, which features cape sleeves, circular skirt and bows and crystal buttons for trimming. There is quaint charm in the demure little embroidered voile frock, with high waist, yoke and puff sleeves. Dotted Swiss is very chic this summer and makes a youthful dress with tiered skirt, cape bertha and sash all edged with baby Irish lace.

Fashion Notes.

THE VOGUE FOR LACE.

Most of the laces seen about Paris are delicate and tiny. There are, however, some of the coarser laces, such as crocheted lace and Cluny lace, which are effectively used on tailored blouses. Valenciennes lace, and narrow point d'Alencon are the favourite laces used for bands and tiny ruffles. Although real laces are liked by those who can afford it, the imitation kind is so perfect to-day that this kind of lace is much used for the costume details on Paris creations.

Not since the good old days when there really were "sweet girl graduates" have we worn yards and yards of narrow lace sewed round the skirts of organdy dresses. We are going to wear such trimming again this summer however.

Sometimes, on a lace frock, a part of the pattern is picked out with beading, or silver or gold threads—a chance for the girl with nimble fingers. In general, however, just simple lace is considered the smartest thing for the frock.

Lace Collars and Cuffs.

Lace collars and cuffs, lace fichus, and lace cravats are a hang-over from winter fashions, but, as a fashion, they are enjoying excellent health, and looking ahead to a prosperous future.

Lace yokes, set into the shoulder regions of smart bodices, are signs of springtime smartness. Lace flowers are a smart accessory. Lace jackets to wear over evening gowns are amongst the fashion novelties. Lace trimmed petticoats and slips worn under transparent evening and afternoon dresses serve to strengthen the reign of lace.

Lace trimmed kid gloves are among the latest novelties seen in Paris. In suede and kid, these gloves will be popular with lace and lace-trimmed afternoon dresses.

Lace is lavishly used in up-to-date lingerie, the hand-embroidered net called Brittany lace being specially popular at the moment. The tops of chemises and combinations are being made of fine net and lace, threaded with silver or gold to wear with low-necked evening gowns. Open-work is insisted as a form of decoration for under-wear.

As for colours in lingerie, pink of all shades predominate, but lovely sets in mauve, sea-green, maize, tango, lavender-blue, and canary yellow are the smart novelties of the season.

Something We Lack.

[By a Modern Girl.]

Billy came home to-day thoroughly happy; the cause of his happiness seemed strange to me: he had casually picked up a stranger on the golf course, and after an exciting round had been beaten by one hole. To-morrow he has fixed for a return game, yet he doesn't know the fellow's name.

I cannot imagine one of my girl friends or myself acting in a similar manner. To-morrow when I visit the links I shall probably see a lady playing by herself, but I couldn't possibly ask her to join me in a pairs. I don't know her—I never shall, unless someone introduces me, and we shall persist in keeping our distance.

Stupid convention prevents much good companionship. We join a club, not for club life, not for the purpose of making friends, but because we want a game. We have friends, they accompany us, and the lonely ones are left to their own devices. We don't know them!

Our brothers have a sadder outlook. If they want a partner they are not afraid to invite the odd man, and quite possibly offer a game to the lonely girl.

She may refuse, but if she accepts she becomes a "fast little minx" at once. We adopt this attitude of aloofness whenever we meet strange women, and the girl who joins a club for the object of making friends is often terribly disappointed.

In the ballroom, at quite a respectable dance too, sits one of these lonely girls. She is a stranger: not one of my women friends would dream of going over to speak to her. "She ought to have brought a partner!" "Who is she?" and similar remarks are made. It is the "Bilys" who summon up courage and ask the girl for a dance; we feel hurt when our Billy asks her for a fox-trot, yet we ought to be proud of him.

Shall we ever attain that freedom of intercourse among women such as our brothers have gained among men of goodwill? I doubt it. There are too many conventions to be satisfied, too many questions to be answered, and we are so dreadfully afraid of "getting into the wrong set."

We shall never get the best results from our games or social life till we rid ourselves of the shackles of convention which allows a fellow club member to play alone "because we haven't been introduced to her," yet we are afraid, terribly afraid, of making the friendly gesture.

THE GOVERNMENT & THE DOLLAR.

Those who have been following the local currency controversy at all closely may have noticed that the opponents of stabilisation have latterly been showing that they are not quite so sure of their ground as they were when the crisis first began to make its influence felt. Six months ago, the mere mention of fixing the dollar was sufficient to call forth emphatic declarations that such a step was an utter impossibility.
Those who talked of stability were treated as though they had never given a moment's serious thought to the question, and were reminded, somewhat impatiently, that the idea had long years ago been ruled outside the realm of practical politics, and that it was nothing but a sheer waste of time to revive the proposal. To-day, the thought is beginning to obtrude itself in these self-same quarters that maybe after all there is something to be said for stabilisation.
In place of the assertion that fixing the dollar could not, on account of the cost and for other reasons, be effected, we now have admissions that the step is quite possible, but refuge is taken in doubt as to whether it would be politic to make the change until China has reformed her currency. As time goes on, we are not without hope that even this hoary argument may also be abandoned.

On the question of ways and means of stabilising our currency, those who advocate no immediate action have complained that the other side has had no concrete suggestions to bring forward as to how stabilisation could be effected. That reproach, however, has now been removed by proposals which have been advanced to deal with the period of transition.
As a useful contribution to the controversy these proposals are certainly worthy of serious consideration in official circles, where the tendency hitherto has been to do nothing except to sit back and complain that those who call for Government action have no ideas as to how the problem can be solved. We suggest, however, that even if the reproach were true in fact, that does not deprive the public of the right to demand that something be done.

Those who draw attention to an evil are under no obligation to outline the means whereby it can be combated. That is particularly true when it comes to matters involving technical knowledge. For example, attention may justifiably be drawn to shortcomings in the public health service, or to inadequacies of the water supply, without requiring critics necessarily to provide the solution to the problems. In these matters, the public rightly expects the Government to have at its command the services of those who can advise on the best measures to be taken. So is it in regard to this currency question.
After all, the Government runs, or should run, this Colony, and the currency which has become so debased is the Government's own currency. There is, therefore, nothing unreasonable in the suggestion that it is the Government's business to get the Colony out of the sorry position in which it now finds itself. At any rate, it ill becomes officials to criticise others for not bringing forward concrete proposals when they apparently have none of their own to offer.

We are aware, of course, that the Government has appointed a Committee to investigate the question, but it will obviously be many months before any action can be taken as the result of that inquiry.
The question of immediate moment is: What is to be done in the interim? Is the sum total of Government statesmanship merely to sit by with folded arms and let events take their own course?
Are no temporary measures possible pending the issuing of the Committee's Report and action thereon? If we look at China, we see a crisis in some respects comparable to that facing this Colony.
At the moment, however, the larger question cannot be dealt with; but that does not deter the Nanking Government from taking interim measures to cope with the situation. We therefore suggest that, without further delay, the Hongkong Government should shake off its lethargy and examine the situation with a view to ascertaining whether some immediate action is not possible. Even the slightest evidence that our officials are really concerned about the position would be infinitely preferable to the impression, which is widespread, that they are either indifferent or totally bankrupt of ideas on the issue.

The Next Naval Step.

Now that the London Naval Treaty is an accomplished fact,
the technical next step on the road to disarmament is due to be taken at Geneva. The transition from London to Geneva, however, is not easy for reasons which have recently been obscured. Theoretically the League of Nations Preparatory Commission, for the Disarmament Conference has been held up since 1928 by the fact that France, on the one hand, and Great Britain and the United States on the other, could not agree on the principles of naval disarmament. The purpose of the League's Disarmament Conference is to establish agreed principles of general disarmament by land, sea and air. The Preparatory Commission first met in March, 1927, but quickly reached a deadlock as a result of the Anglo-French naval disagreement. The practical question that now arises for international diplomacy is whether the London Treaty loosens that particular deadlock. France has dissociated herself from the substantial part of the Treaty, although subsidiary negotiations are to be conducted by Great Britain, Italy and France as a result of this dissociation. It is to be assumed that no step can be taken towards re-assembling the Preparatory Commission until the

For failing to stop when called upon to do so by a police officer in Court this morning before the Hon.

The rainfall registered at the total 28.20 inches, compared with an average of 28.40 inches.

Sentence of three months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. Whyte this morning on a Chinese who admitted stealing two planks of wood from a vacant piece of stated that the defendant had two previous convictions for larceny.

A lorry-driver was fined $20 by Mr. Lindsell this morning for speeding. Sub-Inspector Sanders stated that for about 200 yards before he caught up with the lorry, on the Central water front, the vehicle was travelling at a speed of between 25 and 28 miles an hour. The incident occurred on May 30th, at 3.45 in the

Dr. Daswani is a keen business

WATER LEVELS.

ON WEST, NORTH AND EAST RIVERS.

The following table, issued by the Kwangtung River Conservancy Commission, shows in English feet
the water levels on the West River, North River and East River, on the dates named:

| | June 8 | June 9 |
|-----------------|--------|--------|
| Shuihung | 17.4 | 18.3 |
| Tsingyuen | 9.2 | 8.7 |
| Samshui | 10.3 | — |
| Shengkung | 1.9 | 3.7 |

The highest levels on record are:—Shuihung, 41 feet; Tsingyuen, 29.2 feet; Samshui, 27.3 feet; Shengkung, 15.5 feet.

The lowest level on record at Samshui is 5 feet and at Shengkung
2.7 feet.

European Three-Power conversations have yielded a result. At the moment there is no evidence that they have started, let alone that they have progressed. Italy has announced a warship building programme, some of Mussolini's recent utterances in Italy have not found favour with the French and these, together with other factors, may tend to postpone indefinitely the much desired agreement between France and Italy.
While the London Treaty by itself does not dispose of the Geneva deadlock, a powerful impetus has been given to the movement towards disarmament and this may be expected to help in the removal of the obstacle which, as we have shown, still exists. It may be taken for granted, however, that the British Premier will do his utmost to bring France and Italy together. Domestic affairs, probably demand main attention at the moment, but on the Premier's past work for disarmament it is safe to assume that efforts to secure an agreement between the Five Powers will not be abandoned.

BOAT DAMAGED IN SHELTER.

OAR TAKEN TO SECURE COMPENSATION.

A rather unusual story was related to Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when a boatsman was charged with stealing an oar from the mistress of a cargo boat.

The defendant admitted taking the oar, but denied any felonious intent. He said that the complainant's boat had collided with his in the typhoon shelter yesterday and he insisted that she should make good the damage. She refused, and he took her oar to bring pressure on her to force her to pay.

Detective Sergeant Kellett intimated that defendant was correct, and remarked that a report of the damage was made by the complainant yesterday afternoon.

His Worship said that he did not like to convict the defendant of larceny as he thought it was more an assault than stealing. There was nothing dishonest about the affair, whereas a larceny was a dishonest offence.

The officer pointed out that if the woman did not pay the defendant for the damage he intended to retain possession of the oar.
There was something dishonest about it as he tried to squeeze money from the complainant.

His Worship replied that he still thought that the defendant might be a perfectly honest man all the same.

The defendant was cautioned and ordered to sign a bond for his good behaviour for one year.

CENTRAL THEATRE.

"THE LOVE PARADE" TO START ON SATURDAY.

"The girl with the red-gold hair and the sea-green eyes," known to the musical comedy world as Jeanette MacDonald, has gone
"talkie" through a whim of fate.
Ernst Lubitsch, the famous director, went in search of a proper leading lady for Maurice Chevalier for "The Love Parade," the screen's first original musical romance. In New York Lubitsch attended every musical show and every show in production in search of the perfect type he desired for the role of Queen Louise.

At last he decided that Jeanette
MacDonald was the perfect type.
She was beautiful, she was a talented actress and she could sing.
She was just finishing an engagement in the Broadway show "Boom!
Boom!" and was immediately placed under contract for "The Love Parade."

"The Love Parade" which brings Maurice Chevalier to the Central Theatre for seven days starting Saturday, June 14th, is an original musical romance. The story is as smart and sophisticated as to-mor-row's newspaper and brings a new type of picture to the talking screen.

Maurice Chevalier is cast in the role of a prince who marries a queen and becomes a very stern prince consort who refuses to be ruled according to ancient traditions.
Ten popular hits form the basis for the musical background.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Bus Service Complaint.

[To The Editor of Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—May I, through the court-tesy of your columns, comment on the failure of the Kowloon motor bus service to Lai-chikok to serve the public?

The bus should go right on to the beach, as the road is now quite cleared, instead of stopping outside, much to the inconvenience of the bathers, who have to walk 500 yards each way. It would not be any loss to the Company for the bus to go right in; on the contrary, it would benefit the Company as it would encourage more people to frequent Lai-chikok.

On my part, I believe that with the improved bus service suggested, more people would buy season tickets and also more ladies and married men with their families would frequent the beach.—Yours, etc.,

BELIEVER.

The Very Idea!

A ghost story:
He awoke about 2 a.m. and felt cold, so unhooked his overcoat from behind the bedroom door and threw it across the bed. An hour later he awoke.

"Chink chink. Rustle-rustle."

"He listened. Not a sound."

"Imagination."

He turned round to go to sleep again and heard a distinct little rustling or rustling noise, and a faint tinkling.

He lay still and listened.

Silence.

"Funny," he muttered, settling down in bed.

Again the "chink-chink" and rustling noise.

He listened intently.

Nothing happened. It was too much for him. He arose and searched the room. There was nothing unusual to be found. He spent the remainder of the night in agony of conjecture as to what the eerie rustling and tinkling could be.

Next morning he rose early, tired and worried. He dressed to go out for a walk in the fresh air, and littled his overcoat off the bed.

Out of the pockets fell three pennies and a box of liquorice pellets.

Isaac was very upset! Somebody had opened the door of his fowl house, and the birds had got out and flown away. A friend of his said: "Don't worry, Isaac, hens always go back to their own home to roost."

"Yes!" said Isaac sadly, "that's just the trouble."

Irate Sergeant—"Want yer ticket, do yer? And ain't yer been in the Army long enough to know as it's a soldier's duty to cultivate patience? Patience with a capital
P. Now be off; I ain't got no patience with the likes of you!"

The story is retold of a Quaker who was asked to subscribe to the building of a new organ in a neighbouring church.

The Quaker said little, but gave a handsome donation; and when the parson had expressed his thanks for such a wholly unexpected generosity from a non-Churchman, the Quaker remarked drily, "Friend, if these must worship by machinery, have good machinery."

"John," said his wife over the telephone, "you must come home at once. I have mixed up the plugs of the vacuum cleaner and the wireless, and the loud speaker is sucking all the paper off the walls."

Two fishwives had been to church and had there been told that the wicked would be turned into Hades.
This rather disturbed one of them,
and on her homeward way she mentioned the subject to her companion.

"Did you hear him say the wicked would be turned into haddies, Maggie?"

"That did I, Jean, but it's no oor haddies. It's the Arrooth haddies
—the smoked anes."

Whilst being moored at the Kowloon City Ferry Wharf on Sunday night, a cargo boat was buffeted about by two others which were tied up on each side. The anchor chains caused considerable damage to the middle boat which subsequently submerged. There was fortunately no injury to life but the damage to the boat was estimated at $300.

WHO WAS—
DR. PANGLOSS?

This most worthy gentleman appears in Voltaire's satirical novel "Candide," and whenever he appears the air becomes charged with optimism.
No pessimistic outlook can endure for a moment when Pangloss arrives on the scene, for he demonstrates time and time again that everything is for the best in the best of all possible worlds.

According to his quaint philosophy, things cannot be other than they are, for as everything was made for one end, everything is necessarily for the best end. "Remark well," he commands, that the nose is formed to have spectacles, so we have spectacles.
The legs were obviously instituted to be breeched, and we have breeches. Pigs were made to be eaten, we eat pork all the year."

Candide, the hero of the books, undergoes the most incredible misfortunes, and suffers every conceivable kind of philosophy, but on each occasion he calls his friend Pangloss to mind and remembers that everything is for the best in the best of all possible worlds.

DAMAGED MOTOR CYCLE.POLICE CADET ASKS FOR COMPENSATION.*CHAUFFEUR'S LAPSE.

Compensation to the extent of $50 is being applied for by Mr. Thomson, a Police cadet, for damage caused to his motor-cycle through negligent driving. It is alleged, by the chauffeur of a private car at Bonham Road at 5.20 p.m. on May 27th.

The car is one owned by T. K. Chau, son of a Chinese banker, who is a student at St. Stephen's College. He was represented by his chauffeur in a summons for negligent driving, before Mr. Indall this morning.

The chauffeur said he had authority to pay a fine, if one was inflicted.

Detailing the circumstances of the collision, Inspector Alexander said that the case resulted from a report made by Mr. Thomson, a motor-cyclist, who complained of having been involved in an accident caused by negligent driving on the part of the driver of private car No. 2497.

Mr. Thomson, it was stated, was driving along Bonham Road, in a westerly direction, when the car, which hitherto had been stationary on the other side of the road, suddenly started to cross the road in front of the motor-cycle. This forced Mr. Thomson to swerve on to the pavement where he collided with the wall.

The chauffeur admitted that the mudguard of Mr. Thomson's machine was damaged. "I have reported the accident to the Police," he said.

His Worship: What has that got to do with it? You have got no right to start out at all; you should see what was coming up from behind.

The chauffeur was asked if he had authority from his employer to pay compensation as well.

On replying that he had no such instruction, he was directed to telephone to his employer at the Bank and enquire whether the latter was prepared to pay compensation of the amount asked for.

Returning to the Court later, the chauffeur said that his employer desired an adjournment to enable him to attend the proceedings, personally.

His Worship adjourned the case until Saturday morning.

TOKYO ACTORS FOR LONDON.PICTURESQUE DISPLAY WITH BROADSWORDS.

Mr. Charles Cochran has arranged to take to London the Japanese actors and actresses who have just opened a short season at Mr. Henri de Rothschild's Rue Pigalle theatre, in Montmartre.

The Japanese company, which is going to London, will form the third part of the International season which Mr. Cochran is beginning in co-operation with Mr. Maurice Browne, at the Globe Theatre.

The season will open with Herr Alexander Moissi, the famous German actor. His fortnight will be followed by a two-weeks' stay of the Pitoef company, at present appearing at the Theatre Des Arts here.

Then on June 23, the Japanese players will follow for another fortnight.

"I saw the Japanese company last night," Mr. Cochran said "and I was immensely impressed. It is presenting a series of plays in Japanese which cannot fail to be interesting to English audiences by reason of the picturesque, the singing, dancing, music and the broadsword play."

"The whole gives one an impression of an animated Japanese engraving."

"The dancing is particularly extraordinary. The music, too, is wonderful."

Musician-Cooks.

The thirty Japanese players include six actresses. They have their own orchestra, the members of which fill the additional role of cooks to the company during the Paris tour.

In Paris the company is giving a lyric and dance, "When the Cherry Trees are in Blossom," a mimodrama, "The Doll," followed by "Passing the Frontiers," a war drama of the middle ages. The final piece is a drama in which there is wonderful sword play.

This is the first occasion on which a Japanese company has visited Paris, and audiences are impressed.

In 1914 the Japanese actress, Sadayacco, appeared in London.

According to a United Press report received in Manila, Mr. W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor General of the Islands, has been offered the position of United States Minister to Japan.

Then what becomes of his alleged guarantee of 120 gallons a minute?—He had to get it from the well or from some other sources.

Shortage Contemplated.

"That is exactly what I was going to put to you. So far from Mr. Brearley guaranteeing you a supply of water he warned you that there was a possibility of shortage in connexion with this surface well. You did contemplate the possibility of a shortage of water?—Yes, but it was not a probability."

Mr. Hacker went on to say that Mr. Brearley was contemplating using some of the water for sanitation in the hotel flush system.

If you believed you had a sufficient supply of water guaranteed to you, there would not, so far as the refrigeration plant was concerned, have been any necessity to return this water to the well?—No, there would not have been.

I put it to you, if there was no necessity to return it to the well it was the very last thing you would have desired to do?—Yes, we would have wasted it.

For the simple reason if you return the water to the well, you are returning hot water?—Yes.

If you return hot water to the well, you will reach a point where the well water is so hot that you will render the plant unworkable?—No, you are trying to twist the idea. That water would have had a by-pass.

I put it to you that provisions of this kind were only put in because you contemplated most serious possibilities of a water shortage?—I am not stating that we were not.

Then Mr. Brearley did not guarantee you an adequate supply of water?—Oh, yes he did. These conditions don't alter the fact that he guaranteed.

Sanitation Water.

In reply to other questions, Mr. Hacker again stated it was intended to use the water for the sanitation system also. If the sanitation system had not required it and Mr. Brearley had not wanted it, he would not have returned the water to the well. He had no idea how much water Mr. Brearley wanted for sanitation and could not say whether it was about 5,000 gallons a day. He suggested having a tank for the purpose of sanitation because Mr. Brearley wanted it that way.

It is your evidence that this was Mr. Brearley's suggestion?—It is my evidence that the entire later question was Mr. Brearley's suggestion.

The suggestion with regard to returning water to the well was Mr. Brearley's suggestion?—It was.

I put it to you that that is entirely untrue?—I say it isn't.

I put it to you that that was provided because Mr. Brearley did not guarantee a supply of water and because of a possible water shortage for refrigeration?—That is not a fact.

A Former Scheme.

Witness was then referred to his predecessor's scheme (Mr. Parker) and Mr. Mackenzie's scheme, both of which provided for a tank from which there would be an overflow back to the well. Witness said he did not know what the tank was for and would not think it was because of a possible water shortage. He could not suggest a reason because he could not read his predecessor's mind and Mr. Brearley told him to forget all about those proposals.

I put it to you that you well know that the tank was provided to overcome a possible shortage of water for refrigeration?—I don't know anything of the sort and it would have made no difference because Mr. Brearley was to take care of the water by my agreement with him.

Mr. Hacker said he had read the schemes but with regard to Mr. Mackenzie's he did not remember reading that the overflow from the tank back to the well was "in the event of water running short." He said that possibly he had not read that portion.

I put it to you that throughout, not only in your predecessor's time but also with Mr. Brearley, the possibilities of a serious water shortage was contemplated?—No, but it might have been contemplated by my predecessor.

A Larger Plant.

In reply to a question, Mr. Hacker said he did not think that Mr. Brearley would tell a lie about the water as there was no reason for his doing so, but he might have got information of the water from Mr. Mackenzie.

I put it to you he could not have done so, because Mr. Mackenzie was himself actually contemplating a water shortage?—Yes, but Mr. Mackenzie was also contemplating a much larger plant.

Witness continued that Mr. Brearley told him the water was brackish and said that the water was suitable for the type of condensers to be used. That implied

ARRIVALS BOOK LOCKED UP.BRITISH MASTER FAILS TO "ENTER."*NEW PROCEDURE.

That he had been to the Harbour Office with the intention of registering his arrival in port but found that the book of arrivals was not there was the excuse given by Capt. E. Holmes, master of the British steamer Lyemooon, when he was summoned before the Hon. Commr. G. F. Hole, R.N., at the Marine Court this morning with failing to "enter" his ship at the Harbour Office within a specified time after arrival in port on May 31.

Capt. Holmes stated that the Lyemooon arrived in Hongkong shortly after noon on May 31 which, he pointed out, was a Saturday. It was not until about 12.45 p.m. that the Lyemooon was made fast to the buoy and defendant proceeded to the Harbour Office to register his arrival. He reached the Harbour Office at 1.15 p.m. but found the office closed and the arrival book locked up.

Defendant then left his clearance from the last port, which happened to be Singapore, in the proper place at the Harbour Office, but as the book was not there, he was forced to leave without "entering" his ship.

In answer to his Worship, Mr. R. A. Bates, of the Clearance Office, said the book was always locked up when the office was not open for business. This procedure he added, had only come into force lately.

Continuing, Capt. Holmes said the next day was a Sunday and the Lyemooon went into dock at daylight on Monday.

In registering a conviction, his Worship cautioned the defendant.

by a few Nanking troops from Hankow, put up a fight before the entry of the Kwangsi army into Changsha, and defended a line from Chuchow to Liling.

The Kwangsi forces are stated to have sustained a thousand casualties, and the defenders two thousand.

Finally the Kwangsi forces penetrated the defences, capturing eight thousand rifles and a number of machine-guns.

Fighting is now reported near Yochow, and the Kwangsi troops assert that they will capture Yochow to-day and Hankow within a fortnight.—Reuter.

Agreement to Retire.

Peking, June 9. The vernacular papers state that Han Fu-chu has made an agreement with the Shansi forces to retire and hand over Tsinanfu without fighting.

Some reports state that Fu Tsuyi entered Tsinan yesterday morning, but there is no confirmation in foreign circles.—Reuter.

that all the other qualities were also suitable.

Mr. Hacker said he did not remember being told by Mr. Brearley in his office on the morning of March 14 that he had found an analysis of the water among Mr. Mackenzie's papers.

The case is proceeding.

OFFICIOUS POLICE PAY DAMAGE.JOLLY YOUNG GIRLS IN NIGHT SCENE.

A police and public case of unusual interest was decided at Liverpool Assizes when two girls were each awarded £30 damages for wrongful arrest and imprisonment.

The girls were Rose Rogers, aged 19, and Sophia Tames, aged 21, of Kempston-street, Liverpool. Police-constable Browne was ordered to pay £50 and Police-constables Hart, Tate and Sergeant Smith £10 collectively.

The girls said that shortly after they had been to a dance at Mero Villa Club, of which they were members, they chatted for a few minutes with a boy whom they knew.

The boy gave them some flowers and they then waved to a motor-cyclist, who called, "Hello, Rose." They next spoke to some boys who belonged to the same club.

Constable Browne took the girls to Everton police station, and they were afterwards sent in a police van to the Bridewell, where they were accused of annoying men.

They were allowed to go home, but police court proceedings had been taken against them.

Constable Browne alleged the girls' conduct became so boisterous that he thought it time to interfere.

Mr. E. G. Hemmings, K.C., for the girls, said that so careful was the law of this country of the invasion of individual liberty that it was not a technicality that made the police officer liable, but it was part of the law.

Supposing people could be arrested in this sort of way what security had anyone got? If people were talking in the streets to brothers, cousins, or friends, and could be arrested and taken off to the police station in this way, then who was safe?

SIXTY YEARS IN SHANGHAI.MR. M. J. MOSES DIES IN 70th YEAR.

The death occurred at Shanghai on Wednesday last of Mr. M. J. Moses, manager of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd., and a prominent member of the local Jewish community. Mr. Moses, who was nearly 70 years of age, died at 1 p.m. at his home, 10 Ferry Road. He is survived by his widow.

The late Mr. Moses spent practically the whole of his life in Shanghai, going there 60 years ago. When still in his teens, he showed great aptitude for business and at the age of 21 was appointed manager of Messrs. S. J. David Company, and was directly responsible for the organization of branches of this concern throughout the Far East.

About 20 years ago, the late Mr. Moses left Messrs. S. J. David and joined Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd., as manager of the property department, which post he held until his death.

A touch of influenza about two months ago, resulted in the late Mr. Moses giving up active work although he retained the management of the property department of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co. Complications set in and some weeks ago, deceased became afflicted with internal disorders, which brought about his demise.

PRINCE MICHAEL GOES BACK.RETURNED TO PALACE BY HIS FATHER.*LIBERAL ATTITUDE.

Bucharest, June 9.

King Carol personally took back Crown Prince Michael to the Palace, where Princess Helen is now staying, and left him with his mother.

The Executive of the Liberal Party, headed by Vintila Bratinu, has decided not to support the new regime.—Reuter.

The King's Promise.

Bucharest, June 9.

"I have not come to take vengeance against anybody but to gather together all who wish to collaborate for the progress of the country," declared King Carol II in a speech to the National Assembly after taking the oath of allegiance.

He said that he was most determined to preserve inviolate the integrity of the national territory, and to carry out this promise he needed the co-operation of all the living forces of the country.

"Without the union of all we cannot appear before those who envy us as a solid force, supported by an army organized on the most modern lines."—Reuter.

Meets Princess Helen.

Bucharest, June 9.

King Carol and Princess Helen conferred and decided that neither will seek, for the present, an annulment of their divorce, but agreed that Prince Michael's education should be controlled by Carol.

The Queen Mother has cabled congratulating Carol.

The army has taken the oath of fidelity to the new King, who has issued a proclamation to the Rumanian people repeating his address in the National Assembly.—Reuter.

Ex-King Removed from Mother.

London, June 9.

The dramatic movements in Rumania during the past forty-eight hours monopolise the main news columns of the morning papers.

Following the proclamation of Carol as King, numerous dramatic reports have been received of his attempts at reconciliation with his former wife, Princess Helen.

According to one report, the latter has refused the proffered reconciliation and intends to maintain a separate establishment. In the meanwhile, it is stated that King Carol has taken away the boy ex-King Michael from his mother, following a scene in which Michael tearfully refused to leave Princess Helen.—Reuter.

CORSICAN SCENE IN MONTMARTRE.FULL DRAMA INTRODUCED IN VENDETTA.

Two Corsicans, actively engaged in vendetta, introduced the full drama of their native island to a Parisian cafe.

A taxicab, carrying two men, was going slowly up towards the Pigalle, when suddenly, as it passed a cafe, the occupants stopped the taxi.

Producing revolvers, they fired a number of shots towards the terrace where many persons were seated.

A panic followed. Two men on the terrace fell wounded, while others fled in all directions.

Two Corsicans, one of whom had a bandage round his head, rushed out of the taxicab and ran away (without waiting to pay their fares).

A hue-and-cry was raised, and one of the men was arrested by two detectives who were passing.

"Jacques Mondolini, 30, a native of Corsica," is the description given of the captured man.

He said that he had been playing cards, on the previous evening, in a Montparnasse night club, with a man whom he found cheating and who afterwards assaulted him in the street.

So he decided to avenge himself. He knew that his man was in the habit of taking an apertif in the evening on the terrace of a cafe in Montmartre, so he and his friends hunted for him.

Having found him they opened fire.

The Corsican refused to give either the name of the man he fired at or the name of his companion who escaped.

[The vendetta is now almost as obsolete in Corsica as brigandage. In recent years the French Government has successfully bought outright a number of prominent long-standing vendettas between islanders. In return for sums of money the principal participants honourably keep the peace.]

Other scores were:—W. S. Hillier (14) and A. D. Humphreys (11), one down; C. H. Bradley (12) and A. C. I. Bowker (10), two down.
The Medal Competition was cancelled owing to insufficient entries.

BIG BLAZE AT A BUNGALOW.

BOATING PARTIES TO THE RESCUE.

An oil-stove exploded in a kitchen-outhouse and set fire to Laughing Water, the beautiful bungalow residence of Mr. Aubrey Harding, a London coal merchant, at Wargrave, Berkshire. The bungalow was completely burned out.

A new fire-engine belonging to Sonning Fire Brigade broke down while travelling over two miles of ploughed fields to reach the fire. Another engine had to be called, and the delay allowed the flames to get a hold.

The outhouse was close to the bungalow, which is situated at the junction of the River Loddon with the Thames. When the stove exploded the flames spread rapidly to the bungalow, which was occupied by an Easter party from London.

Mr. Harding was not there. The party included four children and six grown-ups, all of whom were able to get out safely.

Other river dwellers went to their assistance in punts and boats, and some of the furniture was salvaged.

THE RACES.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES A POSTPONEMENT.

The Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club, shortly before the fifth interval yesterday, decided to postpone the second day of the extra meeting. It rained very heavily throughout the morning and the course was under water. The decision to postpone was a wise one for it continued to rain throughout the whole afternoon.

SIMON COMMISSION REPORT.

This tends to obscure to the casual observer the variegated assemblage of races and creeds which make up the whole. Two other influences making for unification are the prevalence of English as a general means of communication among the educated men in India and the growth of a passionate determination among the politically minded classes of all Indian races and religions to assert and uphold the claim of India as a whole to its due place in the world.

It would be a profound error to allow geographical dimensions or statistics of population or complexities of religion and caste and language to be of little significance in what is called the Indian nationalist movement.

True it is that it directly affects the hopes of a very small fraction of the teeming peoples of India.

Power of Leaders.

True, it may be that some leaders do not reflect the active sentiments of the masses of men and women in India who know next to nothing of politicians and are absorbed in pursuing the traditional course of their daily lives.

But none the less, however limited in numbers as compared with the whole, public men of India claim to be the spokesmen for the whole and in India the nationalist movement has the essential characteristic of all such manifestations in concentrating all the forces which are roused by an appeal to national dignity and national self-consciousness.

In 1921 British India had a population of 247,000,000, and the Indian States 72,000,000. As to the complication of language, no single vernacular tongue has so wide a range as English, but only 2,500,000 are literate in English. The language with the greatest currency among all the population is Hindustani, but it is far from being generally understood all over India, in which there are altogether 222 vernaculars.

Rural Characters.

The Commissioners emphasise the predominantly rural character of the population and say "Any quickening of the general political judgment, any widening of the rural horizon beyond the traditional and engrossing interest of weather and water, and crops and cattle, with round of festivals, fairs and family ceremonies, and dread of famine and food, is bound to come very slowly indeed."

Religious Disorders.

The Hindu regards the cow as an object of great veneration of the annual Muhammadan festival. Hindu music played through streets on the occasion of a process-

sion or in connexion with a marriage celebration, may take place at a time when Muhammadans are at worship in an adjoining mosque and it causes an outbreak of resentment. The immediate occasion of communal disorder is nearly always religious. In the chapter on caste and the depressed classes, the Report points out that every Hindu necessarily belongs to the caste of his parents, which nothing can alter.

Systematic classification had revealed 2,300 castes.

Caste Divisions.

Such a division persists in the lowest station, and there are gradations of castes even among outcasts. Some thirty per cent. of the Hindu population are untouchables and for all other Hindus cause pollution by touch and defile food and water. A considerable effort has been made in recent years by social reformers and the Government to ameliorate the lot of the depressed classes, but progress had been and is likely to remain slow, although a real improvement is beginning in some areas.—British Wireless.

[A large portion of the above message has been missed, while several words are doubtful owing to bad atmospheric conditions.]

Future of the Army.

London, June 9.
In the first part of their report the Indian Commissioners regard as unwelcome the theory of dyarchy—the system under which Ministers are responsible partly to the Provincial Legislatures and partly to the Governor in Council.

Other important subjects discussed include the most difficult question of the future of Army arrangements in India in connexion with such problems as the constant menace in the North West Frontier, the use of British soldiers in suppressing communal riots, the question of martial races and the Indianisation of the Army; the relationship of Indian States to the paramount power, the stumbling block caused by Hindu-Moslem rivalry and the question of communal representation where either predominates, and the complications of the caste problem.

The chapter on women refers to the gathering force of the movement against child marriage, the growing feeling against purdah and the increasing participation of women in public affairs.

The Commission is apparently strongly impressed by the arguments for the separation of Burma from India.—Reuter.

A motor bus which left Ardishaig for Glasgow, carried a box in which letters may be posted. The route is through a rural area, which includes the famous "Rest and be thankful hill." The letters are sent to Glasgow by rail from Tarbet (Dumbarton), and are delivered in the city the same afternoon.

CHAPTER XVIII.

It was Bobby Lamont's voice that came to Alan over the wire. Bobby, lonesome and left alone by the servant who was filling Nellie's place on her night out, followed a childish impulse to talk with his best friend.

"Why don't you come over to see me, Uncle Alan?" he demanded in the shrill treble a child uses at the telephone. "It's awful lonesome."

He went right on talking without giving Alan a chance to reply.

"If you'll come over I'll let you look at the new boxin' gloves you sent me, Uncle Alan."

"How about putting them on for a few rounds, old man?"

"Oooooo! Will you?"

"Be right over, Sonny."

Alan didn't know why he promised, unless it was that he didn't want to go to bed, and there was nothing else to do at home. He had tried to read on the train, and found it impossible to become interested in the news. Magazines and books had even less appeal.

Bobby was at the front door to welcome him when he arrived. The boy had on his sleeping suit and a bright red sweater pulled awkwardly over it. His arms were filled with boxing gloves.

"I brought down yours too," he said, and dropped them all to fly to Alan and get his customary big toss.

"Why the sporty costume?"

Alan asked when he put Bobby on the floor again.

"I'm in trainin'!" Bobby proudly announced. "I'm reducin' my tummy. Nellie says I aint built like a prizefighter."

Alan looked him over with mock seriousness. "Never mind Nellie," he said. "I've got to tell you a secret, Bobby. Women are wonderful, but they don't know much about men. Why just look at your shoulders!" he patted the boy admiringly; "when you stand like that, Bobby, you're a future champion."

Bobby straightened up until he leaned over backward. "Come on, get your gloves, Uncle Alan," he exclaimed happily, "and let's work out."

"You mean let's have a work-out," Alan corrected.

He carried the boy upstairs pick-upback, and so thoroughly enjoyed himself during the "work-out" they had, that he only thought of Natalie half the time.

But Bobby tired finally, and Alan had to let the maid put him to bed.

After that he wandered home, and went to bed himself, to toss and turn, and seek vainly to escape his thoughts. Just before daylight, he fell asleep. When he awoke, he had only 20 minutes to catch his train.

He rushed out into the hall and called to Frances. When she came up, he gave her his instructions through a crack in the bathroom door. "Bring up a cup of coffee and put it down somewhere; then call me a taxi. Tell them I've got to make the next train."

He didn't want to be late. The preceding day, when he'd missed his regular train, he found so many people waiting in his office to see him, that he had to give up most of his lunch time to unfinished morning business. Even then he had an uneasy conscience concerning several neglected matters.

Natalie certainly picked out a nice time to put the skids under me," he reflected bitterly, as he tried to check the flow of blood from a small cut on his chin. "With the market behaving like a prima donna, I'm half licked to begin with."

Frances brought up a toasted bacon sandwich with the coffee. Hannah had insisted upon it; she said the poor man ought to have something. Alan tried to eat in snatches while he dressed.

On the train he suffered an attack of indigestion and began to feel sorry for himself again.

When he reached the office he was as cross as a bear with a sore toe, and didn't know when he would write to Natalie.

Phillipa was unobtrusively patient with him. She knew Natalie had gone. Alan had told her, very sketchily, the day before. Phillipa had sensed he was not interested at the time in her reaction to the information, so she concealed it from him.

To-day it was just the same, except near closing time. Alan was getting his hat and coat, when the prospect of dining alone suddenly became unendurable to him.

He rang for Phillipa. She came in, ready for the street.

"Dine with me?" Alan said briefly.

Phillipa hesitated, a trifle offended. She made a quick recovery and was considering some way of accepting that wouldn't make her appear too willing when Alan smoothed the way for her.

"It will be an act of mercy," he said earnestly.

"Of course, I'll go," Phillipa said, and so intoned the words that Alan thought her decision was warmly impulsive.

After dinner they went to the theatre, then to a club to dance. Alan got home too tired to sit up and write a letter. Not only that, he wasn't certain of what he wanted to say to Natalie. He was fearful of spoiling their chance of future happiness together by encouraging her in her unreasonable-ness.

She should, he felt, be allowed time to realize what a goose she was. Still, he wanted very much to write to her. His eyes turned often to his desk in the corner, while he was getting ready for bed, but he resisted the temptation.

Just before he fell asleep he thought of Phillipa, of her unfailing understanding. For one thing, she had not nagged him for arguing with the waiter over a minor matter, he recalled.

"She's a real girl," was his grateful verdict. "She knew well enough that I realized I was making a fool of myself. If Natalie only had half her sense . . ."

The uncompleted thought was with him in the morning. He greeted Phillipa with a touch of warmth, when he paused at her desk on the way to his office.

She smiled brightly and Alan was reminded vaguely of morning glories, of some shining cheerfulness. There was not even a shadow of fatigue about her.

True, she hadn't had to commute such a distance after her night of pleasure, as Alan had, but her radiance was due less to the sleep she'd had than to her pleasant frame of mind.

And then there had been the warm bath her mother had prepared for her at exactly the temperature she liked best. She had to wake her mother up when she got home, and ask to have it ready, but Phillipa didn't mind the bother of that. If gave her a few minutes more to luxuriate in bed in the morning.

She had heard her father grumbling when her mother went for the big fleecy towel, one of those that belonged exclusively to Phillipa, which she had been warming in the kitchen—the bathroom being heated only by a steam pipe. Phillipa had laughed good-naturedly at her father. She could afford to be tolerant, she told herself. Alan's wife had carried out her oftentimes repeated threat at last. He was no woman's man now.

Why shouldn't she be in a gala mood? Why shouldn't she look bright and shining? She was conscious, as Alan gazed at her, that he knew she was these things. She felt no need to hide it from him.

"You're looking as fresh as a daisy," Alan told her approvingly. "No one would guess you'd danced until one o'clock this morning."

"I don't get tired when I'm having a lovely time," Phillipa replied.

But you were out with a terrible grouch," Alan said.

Phillipa's eyes grew meltingly tender as she looked back at him. "I thought you were splendid," she said softly.

Alan laughed, a bit self-consciously. "I'm glad you weren't annoyed with me," he said, and stopped. Happening to glance quickly toward the outer office he noticed several of his employees were watching him.

"I'll be ready for you in about 10 minutes," he said, turning back to Phillipa.

Two or three of the stenographers smiled, that all-wise smile, when Phillipa powdered her nose and rouged her lips afresh as soon as Alan had disappeared into his private office.

She didn't care if they understood her gesture. She had the power to discharge anyone of them. They might as well learn now she considered Alan Converse her own particular game. It would soon become known that Natalie had left him.

With the first sound of the summons to his office she arose, pad in hand, and looked back at the girls with an air of triumph.

NURMI BREAKS NEW RUNNING RECORD.

THE SIX-MILE MARK PASSED AFTER 25 YEARS.

London, June 9.

At the Stamford Bridge athletic meeting, Nurmi set a new world record for six miles, of 29 minutes, 36 and two-fifths seconds.

The previous best was accomplished by the Englishman, Alfred Shrubbs, his time being 29 min. 59 and two-fifths secs. in 1904.

CHESS PLAYERS IN CANTON.

ENTERTAIN TEAM FROM KOWLOON CLUB.

A very enjoyable day was spent by a team of players from the Kowloon Chess Club who visited Canton over the week-end and engaged representatives of the Chinese city. The local exponents proved themselves the stronger of the two teams and won by 8½ points to 1½.

The matches were played at the New Asia Hotel on Sunday morning, the visitors returning to Kowloon by the train in the afternoon. In all cases the matches were very keenly contested and proved very close affairs. The game between G. W. Greene and S. G. Hayes on board No. 2 lasted for fully four hours, before it was left for adjudication. The positions were so even that it was unanimously agreed that a draw would be the fairest result.

During the tiffin which was given, Mr. Greene announced that advantage was being taken of the opportunity of presenting the Canton Chess Trophy to Mr. W. Sommerlatte, the new champion. The speaker asked Mr. S. G. Hayes, the captain of the Kowloon team, to make the presentation. It was mentioned that the trophy, which was donated by an anonymous person, was won last year by Mr. Greene himself.

After congratulating Mr. Sommerlatte on his creditable feat Mr. Hayes presented him with the handsome cup and expressed thanks for having been asked to perform the ceremony.

Mr. Sommerlatte returned thanks and, speaking as the captain of the Canton team, he welcomed the players from Kowloon. He mentioned that he hoped that the interchange of visits would be an annual event.

Mr. J. S. Smith, Vice President of the Kowloon Chess Club, expressed thanks to the members of the Canton team for their invitation and intimated that, as he had said on the previous occasion, he would like to see regular interport matches inaugurated between Canton and Hongkong.

The full scores in the match were as follows:

WATER-POLO LEAGUE MATCH.

FUKIEN CLUB BEAT THE UNIVERSITY YESTERDAY.

The meeting of the University and the Fukien Club in a junior division water-polo league match at the V.R.C. yesterday, resulted in a scrappy and uninteresting game, with the Fukienese the winners by the odd goal-in five.

Both sides revealed astonishing weakness in front of goal, their shooting lacking both power and direction. The winners were the faster combination, and played better together than the University, who often found themselves beaten through poor positioning.

Fukien opened the scoring in the first movement of the game, but the University were soon on level terms. Before the change over, Fukien went ahead again, thanks to a mistake on the part of the opposing custodian, who allowed the ball to slip off his hands into the goal. The teams crossed over without addition to the score.

The University certainly enjoyed the best of the opening exchanges in the second half, and within a short time had again levelled the scores, but inability to force home their advantage prevented their subsequent attacks from materialising, and the Fukienese, again taking command of the exchanges, succeeded in obtaining the winning point a few minutes before the close. The teams were:

University—P. L. Tang, S. T. Cheung, I. K. Ip, H. P. Kio, K. K. Kho, F. F. Lee and C. M. Lo.
Fukien Club—K. P. Tong, L. Y. Long, S. C. Tak, K. Wong, P. P. Kwong, T. Ho and G. Li.

The senior division match between the Somersets and the R. A. was postponed, on account of the latter being unable to raise a team. The fixture will probably be played off on Wednesday.

Hayes won the choice of white for the odd numbered boards.

FROM HONGKONG TO MACAO.

PORTUGUESE LADS' LONG ROW.

Macao, June 8.

For what is thought to be the first time in history, a boat has been rowed from Hongkong to Macao by four Portuguese lads who accomplished the feat to-day after almost eleven hours of strenuous exercise. It is a feat to be proud of and considerable interest was aroused in Macao when it was announced in the morning that a telegram had been received reporting the departure of the little boat from the British colony.

Shortly before the hour at which the rowers were expected to reach Macao, a large crowd of interested spectators had collected along the wall in the New Port where the boat was going to berth and in the bathing sheds of the Sociedade Uniao Recreativa. The Hongkong rowers were given a rousing welcome when they reached their destination.

Owing to an unfortunate accident to the rudder of the boat the journey up to channel into the anchorage of the New Port of Macao was not rowed, but the Portuguese authorities placed a launch to be on the look out for the rowers, and the little skiff was towed into port by the Portuguese vessel.

The journey over from Hongkong was effected in excellent weather, the sun shone faintly through a thin veil of clouds which tempered the heat of Old Sol, yet it was a fairly warm day. The first part of the trip was comparatively calm and good time was made, but the open space between Lantau Island and Macao, a stretch of about twenty miles, was not so easy of accomplishment. The wind freshened as the day wore on, and at the time when the rudder broke it was blowing fairly hard, bearing the channel to Macao harbor.

Under the circumstances great admiration is expressed in Macao at the completion of the feat, and the boys from Hongkong were suitably entertained by the people of Macao.

Boat Behaved Splendidly.

The boat in which the row across was effected was the Lily of the V.R.C. and was none the worse after the trip. The rowers say that the boat behaved splendidly, and are only sorry that the little mishap to the rudder prevented the completion of the journey to the wharf in the Macao Port. Instead of to the wharf, the boat entered the channel, in Portuguese waters.

The intrepid crew consisted of: H. R. Pinna, Stroke; R. Silva Netto, 3; C. Roza Pereira, 2; J. M. das Neves, bow; and L. Roza Pereira, Cox., and after landing they called on His Excellency the Governor of Macao to pay their respects to the governor of the colony. Senhor Tamagnini Barbosa received the rowers very courteously and chatted with them for some time, congratulating them for their accomplishment.

Oarsmen Congratulated.

On the occasion of their stepping ashore at the match of the Sociedade Uniao Recreativa among those who received the rowers were some members of the committee of the Sociedade. The health of the young men was drunk by Mr. Antonio Batalha, President of the Club who said: "I congratulate the crew of this little boat in the name of the Committee of the Sociedade Uniao Recreativa, of its members, and in my own name upon the accomplishment of such a hazardous voyage. I confess that I had thought that the feat could not be accomplished, and upon the receipt this morning of the telegram announcing the departure of the little boat we have been anxiously awaiting further news, and are really pleased to witness your safe arrival."

"The feat is a valourous one in a physical and a moral sense. As a physical accomplishment it represents a test of muscle for ten hours, and morally it represents courage to combat the waves that are so well known to all of us; those waves have severely tried even big ships. Yet descendants of the old Portuguese navigators who risked so much in the olden times could brave the forty miles that separate Hongkong and Macao. The blood in your veins is the same blood as that which flowed in the veins of those men who gave new worlds to the old.

"Upon the accomplishment of this severe feat we congratulate you, and are thankful that nothing has marred your trip and that you have arrived safely at your destination."

Another Link.

Replying, Mr. J. P. Xavier of Hongkong introduced the oarsmen and said: "I believe that this is the only occasion on which the trip from Hongkong to Macao in a rowing boat has been successfully accomplished, and it is indeed pleasing to be able to thank the Committee and the members of the Sociedade Uniao Recreativa for this spontaneous and hearty welcome accorded to the oarsmen from Hongkong, and in the name of these Portuguese lads from Hongkong I offer you all our very sincere and cordial thanks."

"We regret that it was not possible to accomplish the last portion of the trip, yet the journey from Hongkong was accomplished to the anchorage of the channel of the Port of Macao, and we feel happy that this has been done; it is one more link between the communities of Hongkong and Macao. The coming together of Hongkong and Macao has been a notable feature of recent years, and we feel proud that we have been able to contribute our little bit. We must confess that we had not expected to be given this very cordial reception, and the health of Macao and the charming ladies of the colony, so many of whom have graced this reception by their presence."

The oarsmen were then conducted to the Boa Vista Hotel where after a change they called on His Excellency the Governor of Macao as reported above.

In the evening a dinner was given in honour of the Portuguese rowers from Hongkong, and among those present were Mr. Antonio Batalha, President of the Sociedade Uniao Recreativa, Mr. G. V. da Silva, Mr. Raul de Rozario, and others.

The Trip Described.

Interviewed, the rowers stated that special thanks are due to the Stewards of the V. R. C. for the assistance rendered to enable the feat to be accomplished. The boat was completely overhauled in preparation for the trip. Free boards were screwed on, all the bolt and nuts were changed, and much was done to enable the trip to be safely done. The Secretary of the V.R.C., in particular, was specially kind to seeing to the many matters that were found necessary or desirable.

Describing the trip, Mr. L. Roza Pereira said that the first part of the journey, through the darkness, was accomplished with ease. An electric torchlight, flashing occasionally, served as the boat's light, and it was when the boat had already passed the farther end of Stonecutter's Island that the first signs of daylight. The boat had left the V.R.C. at 4.15 a.m. The weather remained calm, and the boat passed through Capesimoon in perfectly calm weather, the current being favourable.

The first mishap occurred opposite The Brothers, when the cox jumped overboard and tied with twine the cord to the rudder where a little hinge had given way. The weather continued to be perfect and good time was being made.

From Lantau Bluff Point, however, the rowing began to be difficult. The boat was no longer protected, and a breeze blew from the open sea. The current, too, seemed to be against the oarsmen, and progress was slower. Presently the breeze began to freshen and the sea began to run a little higher. The most difficult part of the journey was after the Nine Pins had been passed, and in addition to a stiffer breeze, cross currents made headway extremely difficult.

Cheers from Sui Tai.

At 11.45 a.m. the Sui Tai passed the boat, and the rowers were given a cheer from those on board the excursion ship from Hongkong. The seas were choppy and the tide was strong, and just at this time the remaining hinge of the rudder broke and the rudder sank. No headway

A STATE OFFICE HUSTLES.

LAND REGISTRY OR "TUBE RAILWAY."

There is at least one really high-speed Government department in London.

Comparatively few people have heard of it, but the speed with which it gets through its work (writes a Daily Chronicle representative) is such that it is known in other Government departments as "The Tube Railway."

The department is his Majesty's Land Registry, in Lincoln's Inn Fields, and a vital reminder of its existence has just been issued in the form of an annual report.

It bristles with facts and figures concerning the dispatch with which this work is carried out.

A State Security.

Land registration involves the compulsory submission of titles to land by purchasers in the County of London, and the county boroughs of Eastbourne and Hastings and voluntary registration elsewhere.

The titles, if approved, are registered and become a State guaranteed security.

This greatly reduces legal costs, and simplifies the transaction in the event of the land being resold.

There are now, the report states, 403,000 separate titles on the register, of the estimated total value of £387,000,000.

With these there have been over 1,186,000 transactions of the estimated value of £958,000,000.

Mr. J. S. Stewart Wallace, the Chief Land Registrar and "Speed Chief" of the department, states that the average time for effecting registrations of title in London has been reduced from 24.8 days in 1920 to 7.4 days in 1929.

The Chief's Motto.

For dealings with registered land the reduction is from 10.9 days in 1920, to 4.8 days in 1929. "There is no red tape here. The chief's only motto is 'Speed up,' and we speed a little more every day."

So I was told at this unusual Government department.

There was no form to fill up when I asked to see an official, and I saw him after waiting only a few minutes in a room in which was prominently displayed these injunctions:—

"Fire, if you see an outbreak of fire, try to put it out. Shout for Help. Warn the Telephone Operator."

could then be made, and though assistance was offered by the officer in charge of the Government launch, Comandante Talone, the rowers endeavoured to make the port of Macao. The oarsmen felt that if they could turn round the beacon and enter the smooth water of the channel the remaining portion of the journey would have been completed with ease.

After battling against the treacherous currents at this point, and as the breeze was freshening considerably they thought it prudent to accept the offer of the Portuguese launch, and the little vessel from Hongkong was taken in tow. The boat reached the pier of the Portuguese Club at 2.45 p.m.

Many snapshots of the little boat and the rowers were taken and the Portuguese showed the visitors much kindness and were ready to render every assistance that was required. Special arrangements have been made to ship the rowing boat back to Hongkong in the Sui Tai to-morrow.

BRITISH HURDLE RECORD.

NEW TIME ESTABLISHED BY LORD BURGHLEY.

FINE PERFORMANCE.

London, June 9.
Lord Burghley set up a new British record for the 120 yard hurdles to-day when he competed at the first triangular athletic match between clubs of Britain, France and Germany at Stamford Bridge.

Lord Burghley did the 120 yard hurdles in fourteen and a half seconds, a performance which called forth an enthusiastic demonstration from the spectators. The athletic match resulted in the Achilles club securing 74 points. Germany and France scored 34 and 39 respectively.—Reuter.

Lord Burghley has won over a hundred hurdle races, including the Oxford v. Cambridge 120 yards hurdles and 220 yards hurdles in 1925, 1926 and 1927. He won the British 440 yards hurdle championship in 1926, 1927 and 1928. He was world's champion for the 440 metres hurdles at Amsterdam in 1923, equalling the Olympic record.

He was one time holder of the 120 yards hurdles record with a time of 14.4/5 seconds. British; 220 yards hurdles record, 24.4/5. British; 440 yards hurdles record, 54 secs. world and British record. The latter record is still held by Lord Burghley.

He has twice won the U.S.A. inter-Collegiate 400 metres hurdles and has won races in Ireland, America, France, Germany, Switzerland, Norway, Hungary, Holland and Greece.

TORY AGRICULTURAL POLICY.

OUTLINED BY THE FORMER PRIME MINISTER.

London, June 9.
In a speech which he made to an audience of ten thousand people at an open air meeting near Wickham Market, Suffolk, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, outlined the Conservative agricultural policy.

He stated that his policy was to fix a guaranteed price for wheat for a period of years after consulting with agriculturists, to prevent the importation of bounty-fed and dumped oats by prohibition or a countervailing duty and to impose a duty on imported barley, denouncing any treaty standing in the way of this.—Reuter.

WORKERS TRAPPED IN TUNNEL.

SIX DEAD IN EXPLOSION AT DETROIT.

Detroit, June 9.
Four labourers were killed, twelve injured and a score trapped by an explosion which occurred in a waterworks tunnel, 180 feet below the surface of the Detroit River. The explosion was caused by an electric drill striking a charge of dynamite.—Reuter's American Service.

DEATH OF NOTED SCHOLAR.

SIR HERBERT WARREN DIES AT AGE OF 77.

OXFORD PRESIDENT.

London, June 9.
The death occurred to-day of Sir Herbert Warren, ex-President of Magdalen College, Oxford, who was born at Bristol in October, 1853. From Clifton he went to Balliol College, Oxford, where he was Hertford and Craven Scholar and Gaisford Prizeman, taking a first in Classical Mods. in 1873 and in Lit. Hum. in 1876.

From 1877 until he was appointed President of the college in 1886 he was a Fellow and Tutor of Magdalen. He was only 32 when he succeeded Dr. F. Bulley and he held the post for 43 years. His retirement was fixed for October, 1928. Since 1791 there have been only three Presidents of Magdalen, the first being Dr. Routh who lived to be 100.

When Sir Herbert took office, the new St. Swithin's quadrangle was hardly finished and the changes introduced by the commission which inquired into the affairs of the college in 1880 had not taken full effect.

Since then Magdalen has grown out of all knowledge and has greatly enhanced its reputation and influence. A friend of Tennyson and an admirer of the great Victorians Sir Herbert Warren maintained the traditions of polite learning in an age of utilitarian studies and strove to induce his undergraduates to take an interest in Latin and Greek.

For one year only two of them were reading for Classical Moderations. From 1906 to 1910 he was Vice-Chancellor of the University. He also served on the Treasury Commission to inspect University Colleges and on the Consultative Committee of the Board of Education.

For two years he had the Prince of Wales under his wing at Magdalen and his fondness for telling anecdotes about his Royal charge became a subject of mirth among undergraduates. Thus it is asserted that, if he saw H.R.H. on a mere bicycle, he would at once place his car at the Prince's disposal.

Sir Herbert—he was knighted in 1914—wrote much on poets and poetry and his own poems include "The Death of Virgil" and "By Severn Sea." He was professor of poetry at Oxford from 1911 to 1916. His literary work included many contributions to the reviews.—Reuter and I. B. S.

MACAO NOTES.

FRENCH AEROPLANE REACHES HANOI.

Macao, June 9.
News has been received in Macao from Hanoi reporting the safe arrival, on June 5, of the French aeroplane which fell at Toishan on May 27 on its way on the return trip from Canton to Hanoi. One of the wings was slightly injured when landing at Toishan, and a substitute wing, taken from the plane which crashed not far from Macao, was sent from Macao to Toishan in the French gunboat Vigilante.

The plane at Toishan was evidently repaired successfully and completed the flight without further mishap.

The death has taken place at Macao of Mr. Jose Maria Espirito Santo de Senna, late of the Chinese Postal Service. He retired from the service not long ago and decided to settle down at Macao with his family. He was married to a daughter of Mr. A. A. de Mello.

The late Mr. Senna is survived by his wife and two children for whom much sympathy is felt.

The typhoon passed by the Colony without doing any damage, but several Hongkong people, including the oarsmen who rowed here, were held up as a consequence.—Our Own Correspondent.

JUNK SINKS IN KOWLOON BAY.

THREE CRAFT FOUL THEIR ANCHOR CHAINS.

When the anchor chains of three junks fouled in Kowloon Bay on Sunday night, one of them sank in deep water and the crew had several anxious moments before they were rescued.

Cheung Kee, who reported the matter to the police, said he was the master of trading junk T.2859H, and had just returned from an inter-island cruise and anchored about 9 p.m. when the two other junks laden with bricks came alongside. The entangled anchor chains pulled the junk to the water's edge where it filled and soon sank. All of the crew were rescued.

ACCIDENT LEADS TO RIOTING.

BRITISH SOLDIER SHOTS TWO CHILDREN.

TRIAL REVELATIONS.

Peshawar, June 9.

How an accident led to serious rioting was described during the course of the trial of a British Lance-Corporal here named Cummings who was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment for accidentally shooting two children at Kabuli Gate on May 31.

Cummings was cleaning his rifle, and as a carriage containing a Sikh woman and two children was passing the rifle went off.

The bullet killed the two children and wounded the mother. An angry mob gathered and seriously threatened the small party of British troops. The latter eventually fired on the crowd with the result that seven people were killed and nine wounded.—Reuter.

Salt Raiders Sentenced.

Wadala, June 9.

Forty-two volunteers arrested in connexion with the raid on the Wadala salt works have been sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment.—Reuter.

Sequel to Bombay Raid.

Bombay, June 9.

Ten members of the Bombay Congress Committee, including the ex-president of the Assembly, Mukund Malaviya, a son of Pandit Malaviya, who were arrested in the police raid on the Congress headquarters last Friday, have been sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment.—Reuter.

THEFT OF MINERAL WATERS.

CHINESE DROPS BOTTLE WHEN CHASED.

Two bottles of aerated water were produced before Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning as exhibits in a theft charge brought against two young Chinese who were accused of stealing one bottle each from a female stall holder in Hunggham.

On both defendants admitting the offence, Inspector Stimson informed his Worship that the first defendant had taken a bottle of orange squash and the second a bottle of sarsaparilla from the complainant's ice chest and run away. They were chased and the second defendant dropped his bottle before being caught.

The first defendant was stated to have had several previous convictions for stealing and on a number of occasions had been taken to the Police Station on suspicion, but, owing to insufficient evidence, had to be released. He had been formerly recommended to the Police Boys' Club but had apparently run away.

He was given three months' hard labour, while the second defendant, who had one previous conviction for larceny, was ordered to receive twelve strokes of the cane.

TWO COXSAINS FINED.

FOR FAILURE TO SCREEN LIGHTS.

Summoned before the Hon. Commr. G. F. Hole, R.N., at the Marine Court this morning for failing to screen the port and starboard lights of their respective vessels with the regulation screens, Mak Kan, the coxswain of the steam launch Kong On, and Pang Hing, coxswain of the motorboat Sun Wing Fat, were fined $25 each.

The former stated that he was not the coxswain of the Kong On but on the night in question was in charge of the launch, having taken over the work for a while. He possessed a coxswain's certificate. Shortly before he was seen by the police that night, he had left a junk which he was towing but before he had put the screens back again, he was hailed by a police launch.
